The Canadian Alliance of Physiotherapy Regulators (CAPR) is seeking:

Physiotherapists to join the Atlantic Canada Written Item Generation Team

About the Atlantic Canada Written Item Generation Team (WIGT)

The Atlantic Canada WIGT is a group of physiotherapists who write relevant, high-quality items for the Written Component of the Physiotherapy Competency Exam (PCE).

Item writers:

- Create multiple-choice questions that test higher-order cognitive skills.
- Review and revise items that have been used in previous examination administrations.
- Participate in other activities related to the development of the item bank.

Why You Should Become an Item Writer

Your work will have an impact. You will play a vital role in helping ensure that all physiotherapists entering the profession across Canada meet the requirements for safe and effective practice.

You will be trained in item writing best practices and collaborate with other physiotherapists in small teams to create and review questions for the Written Component of the PCE.

Time Commitment

Item writers dedicate approximately 10 hours each month to the process of item development. This includes time for research, writing, review, and collaborating with team members.

Orientation and training will take place in Summer 2023.

WIGT members receive an annual honorarium for their work.

Who Should Apply?

All physiotherapists who hold a license in a category that permits independent and unrestricted clinical practice are welcome to apply.

We highly value different perspectives and believe that these experiences enrich the quality of exam content and ensure fairness in the exam development process.

We are actively seeking to build teams that are made up of a mix of clinicians who represent the diversity of the profession.

The deadline for applications is June 30, 2023.
